“ Carol loved her family and they loved her back. It was obvious a lot of good times were had at the Bellamy's house. When her family visited her, you could hear her laughter and you just knew one of her children or grandchildren was sharing a memory with her. She had kind and loving eyes that spoke volumes. She will be missed, not only by those her loved her most, but those who knew her for a short time. There will be times when you will smell a scen or see something that reminds you of her and the tears will come, embrace each one and remember she loved you.##imported-begin##Jan Miller##imported-end##
